Choosing Binoculars

For independent travellers, a good pair of binoculars often represents an essential piece of kit. Unless you're planning to do a (0)great deal of bird-watching or other specialist activities, however, there's no need to invest (9) a full-size pair. Compact binoculars are fine when (10) comes to general all-purpose viewing in good light. What's (11), they are certainly easier to carry round.

Everyone has (12) own idea of what makes a comfortable pair of binoculars. When you're considering (13) of the many brands and models on the market you should choose, don't base your decision on price alone. A better idea (14) to pop down to your local photographic store and (15) those that fall within your price range a test run.

(16) you might like the look of a particular pair, you may not find the handling and viewing position comfortable. Finally, make sure the binoculars come with a decent case and a comfortable neck strap. These details can make all the difference when you're out in the field.

It is important to read the questions carefully. It can help to underline or highlight key words so that you know what to focus on.

Read these questions. Which words would you underline in them? In which book review are the following mentioned?

- 1 a character with a resemblance to a real-life celebrity
- 2 a story that is partially based on the author's own childhood
- 3 a book which has been not very successfully adapted to another medium
- 4 a story that has an unexpected twist at the end
- 5 a gripping book with an eccentric main character

Try to think of synonyms or paraphrases for key words as you read the questions.

- 1 a character with a resemblance to a real-life celebrity
- 2 a story that is partially based on the author's own childhood
- 3 a book which has been not very successfully adapted to another medium
- 4 a story that has an unexpected twist at the end
- 5 a gripping book with an eccentric main character

The texts are unlikely to use the same words as the questions. Answer these questions about the task in Exercise 1.

- 1 What phrase might convey the idea of having a resemblance to?
- 2 What adjective might be used to say that a text is based on the author's life?
- 3 What is the most likely other medium for a book to be adapted to?
- 4 What phrase might replace unexpected twist: unusual turn of events or surprising location?
- 5 Which of these words might a reviewer use to convey a similar idea to gripping: thrilling, amusing, spellbinding, puzzling, engrossing, inspiring?
- 6 How might the reviewer convey the idea of an eccentric main character?

In this part of the test you should scan the text rather than read it in detail.

Names and numbers are relatively easy to find when scanning a text. In 30 seconds, which proper names (e.g. of people, places, books ...) and which dates can you find in this text?

Science in Fiction

Science fiction thrillers have a rich history. Erica Wagner picks her favourites

By the time of his death in 2008, Michael Crichton had become the giant of the science thriller genre. He was perhaps best known for his novel Jurassic Park – published in 1990 – and the film spin-offs of his books. (I say 'best-known' but let's not forget that he was also the man behind the famous story of the little alien ET, who befriends a small boy.)

For my money, however, his finest and most frightening novel was one of the earliest: The Andromeda Strain published in 1969. The novel builds on the premise that if we are ever to encounter aliens from another galaxy, they are much less likely to be little green men than microscopic life forms.

On a slightly jollier note, sticking to alien life, there's Carl Sagan's Contact, published in 1985, the tale of a radio astronomer who encounters a signal that could have been sent only by an intelligent life form. On one visit to the Jodrell Bank Observatory in Cheshire I was heartened to discover that this book (and the 1997 film starring Jodie Foster) was a favourite of the astronomers there.

But back to putting a shiver down your spine. How about Mary Shelley's Frankenstein? First published, anonymously, in 1818, it shows that even in what the writer and academic Richard Holmes so memorably termed 'The Age of Wonder', the dark side of scientific research was never far from imaginative minds.

Now take another minute and find the answers to these questions about those names and numbers. The questions do not follow the order of the text.

- 1 Who is the author of this article?
- 2 Which is the oldest book she mentions?
- 3 Which is the most modern?
- 4 What can be found in Cheshire?
- 5 Which creations bearing Michael Crichton's name are mentioned in the article?
- 6 Which of these does the reviewer say she likes most?
- 7 Which of Jodie Foster's films is mentioned in this article?
- 8 Whose name was on the title page of the first edition of Frankenstein?
- 9 When was the book that the Jodrell Bank astronomers like published?
- 10 Who coined the phrase 'The Age of Wonder'?
- 11 Which age does 'The Age of Wonder' refer to?
- 12 When did Michael Crichton die?

- A Bush Trials This documentary follows the popular lead singer of the band Furry Monsters as he travels through Australia in search of a long-lost relative, a fellow musician. In the process he acquaints himself with a small community living in the outback. He stays with them for longer than he intended, forgetting about his relative but getting to know them and becoming involved in their life. He's a likeable guide, chatting enthusiastically to local residents and joining them in concerts and table tennis tournaments in their village hall. The film is informative about Australian histor]y without being too heavy. Does he meet his relative? Well, I recommend you go and watch Bush Trials and then you'll find out.
- B Car Heroes This film is intended as a proper action movie for today's youngsters rather than a nostalgia fest for those of us who remember the 1980s television series. The film proudly shows off its distance from the criginal in an irreverent prologue in which the heroes' trademark black van is disposed of in no uncertain terms. Even the fondest fan would be hard put to argue that the TV show was a cultural landmark worthy of a preservation order and yet I'm not convinced that this film has any right to be so pleased with itself. Its action scenes are, of course, a lot more expensive than the TV show's brief shoct-outs but only one of these shows much imagination and so were hardly worth the expense. Well, that's how I felt at least.
- C Acing It For this high-budget remake of the 1994 film about a bullied boy who gets his own back by learning judo, the director has kept to the tried and tested plot while souping up the action to modern standards. The contest that provides the climax to the film is now an event of Olympic scale and flamboyance and the fights it features are certainly more dynamic than before even though the participants are younger, 12-year-olds rather than the original film's car-driving, party-loving teenagers. The film generally provides decent entertainment. Its main weakness is that it drags in places and ends up rather more drawn-out than it needed to be. Nevertheless this is definitely a film you should consider for a family outing.
- D Will Made in Scotland by the extraordinarily successful young Canadian director, Jack Fox, this film was not deliberately made as a parody of cinema pretentiousness although it could certainly be interpreted as such. A teenage boy escapes from his bad-tempered parents in their dark old castle in the Highlands by climbing into the surrounding trees and refusing to come down a lifestyle choice he manages to maintain for several months. Apart from a few striking moments showing the boy clambering through the forest, it lacks the sort of visual intensity that might have allowed the film to succeed despite its other shortcomings. Far from seeming noble or poignant, the boy's tree life remains just an anti-social teenage sulk. He should be grounded.

At a cinema near you this week

There is a variety of films on general release this week. There should be something to appeal to most tastes and age groups.

E Red Lake The director of this film also plays its central character: a prison guard and family man, who means well but can't help keeping secrets from his wife and k ds. The big one is that the young ex-convict that he has taken under his wing is his son from a long-ago relationship, but, curiously perhaps, he's just as unwilling to reveal he's attending both acting and golf classes. Meanwhile other family members have secrets of their own. The film aims for a balance between life lessons, drama and farce. This doesn't work particularly well. All the same, it is easy to watch, mainly thanks to the surprisingly powerful performances of the two main characters.

In which review are the following mentioned?
a central character who is said to be friendly	20
a character who is not honest with his relatives	21
a director with a part in his own film	22
a film which makes insufficient impact on the eye	23
a lot of money being spent without many obvious gains	24
a production that would have been improved by being shorter	25
a son deals with problems with his parents in an unusual way	26
a story aimed at the youth market	27
a partially successful new version of a popular old movie	28
a true story of a search for a family member	29
a youngster who uses sport to overcome his difficulties	30
an aspect of the film has an educational element	31
the film might be understood to have a different meaning from what was intended	32
the acting rescues an otherwise problematic film	33
the film has its origins in a previously popular television drama	34

OVERLY AMBITIOUS?

It is commonly believed that being overly ambitious is a negative and even destructive trait. The main reason that ambition is not always highly regarded is that many people associate it with greed and with the type of people who push others out of the way to get where they want to be. According to a well-respected psychologist, if we take a randomly selected group of people, only one in ten would be regarded as highly ambitious. I am personally strongly opposed to the idea that ambition is a dirty word, and I'm deeply concerned that young people, especially women, are being held back by such stereotypical views of ambition. So, what is a more positive way to embrace your aspirations? First of all, it is vitally important to focus on your education at the early stages of your career. The most ambitious people tend to be highly educated. It is also useful to be well thought of by your peers, so get out there and join professional and social networks – both on and offline. Don't just join and be a passive observer. Get actively involved.
